Premier hints at spring election

Redford said she's been clear about holding a spring session of the legislature before going to the polls Polling day must be held sometime in March, April or May by law

Alberta politicians go back to work at the legislature Feb. 7, but Premier Alison Redford says no one should expect an election campaign to start soon afterward.

Redford says she wants to pass the budget in the spring sitting before dropping the writ to begin a 28-day campaign.

By law, polling day must be held sometime in March, April or May, meaning Redford could call an election as early as Feb. 2 or as late as May 3.

She has always indicated there would be a budget introduced before an election, but hadn't confirmed until Thursday that she wanted it passed before a campaign.

Budget approval usually involves six weeks of debate in the house. That would put polling day in April at the earliest.

Redford will be seeking her first mandate as premier since winning the Tory leadership and replacing Ed Stelmach last fall.

The new election law was passed by her government in the fall sitting. It followed up on a commitment she made during the leadership campaign for a fixed election date.

Premier Alison Redford

"I have said that we would have a throne speech. We would bring the budget forward. We would have a spring session of the legislature and then we would go to the polls."
PREMIER ALISON REDFORD

Opposition critics say Redford broke that promise because the law instead allows for a three-month election window that still gives the Tories the advantage of calling the vote at a time most propitious for them.

Redford has countered that the fixed window works better because it is tight enough to deliver certainty while avoiding clashes with holidays or unexpected events.

▶ Baseball Calgary's Curtis Gulliford is very interested in potentially available space to train inside Calgary schools.

Opening doors in underutilized schools to sporting groups desperately searching for training space could help solve two long-standing problems in the city, say some involved with the athletics community.

As part of a recently released 10-point plan for the future of Alberta education, Minister Thomas Lukaszuk has pledged to explore all avenues of possible use before closing a school.

Speaking to Metro in December, the minister offered up transforming some space currently owned by school boards into short-term medical or recreation centres.

The latter option is music to the ears of groups like Baseball Calgary, said president Curtis Gulliford.

"The problem is not so much with fields," he said. "We don't have any space to train in the winter.... It's important to get into some gyms and start building up arm strength, and so on, to prevent injuries."

Frank Coppinger, the Calgary Board of Education's superintendent for facilities, cautioned that available space in schools hinges on provincial decisions regarding both the introduction of system-wide, full-day kindergarten and the construction of new schools.

He added that the board explores all options before recommending a facility be closed.

Darryl Leinweber, executive director of the Calgary Minor Soccer Association, deemed partnering with schools a "perfect scenario" but said some changes would be needed as teams leasing space in the past have been required to pay a pretty penny and only use felt balls for training.

"If (an agreement) was at all possible, it would be tremendous boost," he said.

School struggles

- Frank Coppinger with the Calgary Board of Education said up to 20 schools could face severe utilization struggles over the next three years.
- As it is, administrators could recommend three local schools for closure later this year.

▶ Calgary's sticking with its slogan "Heart of the New West."

It's not a rebrand, city asserts

Calgary won't be getting a new slogan — at least not any time soon, says Calgary Economic Development.

There's been a social media buzz about adopting "Be part of the Energy" as the city's new slogan but according to the CED, it's just not in the cards.

"It's so premature to even contemplate that right now," said Mary Moran, vice-president of marketing and communications at the organization.

Moran said "Be part of the Energy" is only a campaign brand designed to bring people and businesses to the city. She said developing a new Calgary "brand" isn't a priority, nor is it in the budget right now.

Though Calgary won't be getting a new slogan, there's some people who do think the city should adopt "Be part of the Energy" as its motto.

"Be part of the energy has so much more meaning as to how the city feels," said Diane Swiatek.

"It's got multiple meanings and it's not hokey," she said. DANI FINCH

KATIE TURNER
@METRONEWS.CA

The second anniversary of the catastrophic earthquake in Haiti brings up mixed emotions for Calgarian Robin Bauer.

While the day marks heartache and disaster, Bauer said he's grateful it helped expedite a new addition to his family.

Bauer and his wife Kari had been working to adopt Betchilove for two years and were left in shock when they heard their daughter was in the midst of a quake.

634K According to the International Organization for Migration, an estimated 634,000 people are living in displacement camps in Haiti.

"When you know the orphanage is right in the epicentre, obviously you expect the worst," he said.

Two years later, Bauer said his daughter, now 5, is excelling.

"Things have been amazing for Betchilove, and for us as a family it's been as good as you can imagine."

Aside from playing Play-Doh Ice Cream Shoppe with her big sister Kaiya, 7, Betchilove said there's one other thing she loves most about her family: "They brought me home."

Calgary mom Marla Munro and her husband Rocky welcomed two children from Haiti into their family weeks after the earthquake. Munro said Izak, 5, and Isla, 3, couldn't be doing better.

"We couldn't be happier," she said. "We just got family photos and I just feel like this is the happiest time in our lives."

If you're missing your golf clubs, your motorcycle or your crossbows, Calgary police may have found them.

Police are hoping for the public's help in finding the owners of a room full of stolen items they believe are a direct result of several break-ins in the city.

"We know that some of this property came from at least two break-ins at commercial premises during the Christmas period. It's not a leap of faith to think that it's probably stolen from other commercial premises or residences in or around the Calgary area," said Staff Sgt. Dale Flemming.

The property was recovered from a self storage container and a private residence in Northeast Calgary, said police.

"We're hoping to be able to return (the property) to rightful owners," said Flemming.

Recovered

- Some of the items seized include generators, motorcycles, golf clubs, ladders, heaters, crossbows and power tools, said police.
- Police said the stolen property totals between $20,000 to $30,000.
- As a result of the investigation, 36-year-old Patrick Labrash and 50-year-old Kenton Parsons have been charged with possession of stolen property, said police.
- Police said break-ins at commercial premises occur frequently in and around Calgary.

IN DEFENCE OF

MIKE MORRISON
METRO CALGARY

Going out to eat in Calgary is one of my favourite things to do.

Especially since the city seems to be going through a little bit of a food revolution lately. We've seen countless new restaurants open up, all of which continue to be so pleasing to our palates.

But along with many of these new restaurants has come an odd new trend that's making going out to eat more annoying than ever. Have you noticed that an increasing amount of establishments are saying no to reservations?

I've lost track of how many times I've tried to call some of the hottest places in town, only to find out that I wouldn't be able to book a table. And it's not like I'm calling a few hours before. I'm a planner, so I'm talking weeks in advance.

"I've lost track of how many times I've tried to call some of the hottest places in town, only to find out that I wouldn't be able to book a table."

Places like Una, Model Milk and The Coup all have a strict no-reservation policy. This approach often means that you end up waiting in line, sometimes for more than hour, just so you can eat food that you're paying for.

I don't care if you're serving deep-fried McLobsters, no restaurant is worth a wait that long. These places might not respect their customers' schedules, but I know lots of restaurants that do.

After some investigating, I now understand that if restaurants have people lined up around the block, they'll never have an empty seat. But I won't be one of those people in line, especially now that it's cold. And I'm not the only one.

I can't imagine being an over-worked, time-starved parent that finally gets a night off, and then ends up spending most of the night waiting for a table. What about those of us with plans after supper? I'm not going to miss a movie or concert because you don't want to take reservations.

With so many different restaurants in Calgary, why would you choose to wait in line, when you can walk across the street and eat somewhere just as enjoyable?

For me, when I go out to eat, it's something that should be relaxing, whether it's with close friends or even by myself. (Yup, that's me in the corner of that restaurant reading The Hunger Games.)

I've worked in enough restaurants to know that even the most popular place, no matter how cool it is, eventually needs to evolve to adapt to a changing clientele.

It's just too bad that when they come looking for that clientele, we'll already be getting dessert at that place that happily took our reservation.

Calgary police have released a sketch of a suspect in two recent luring incidents in the northeast.

On Dec. 29, a 15-year-old was walking in the 6800 block of Martindale Gate Northeast when she noticed a suspicious vehicle following closely behind her.

An individual rolled down a window and asked her to get in, but the teen refused and fled the area.

Schools get a scolding over Tory donations

Alberta's minister of advanced education delivered a scolding Thursday to any post-secondary institutions donating illegally to the Progressive Conservative party.

Greg Weadick said it's up to the schools to know the rules and follow them.

The Wildrose party revealed Tuesday that the University of Lethbridge had donated thousands of dollars to the governing Tories, and the head of the university says it wasn't officially made aware of the rule changes until a year later, and it was only then that it stopped the practice. ## MLA won't run in next election

Alberta's former culture minister is about to become a former legislature member.

Lindsay Blackett, who represents Calgary-North West for the Tories, has announced he will not seek re-election.

In a statement on his Facebook page, Blackett says he's weighed the pros and cons for six months and has decided he needs to spend more time with his family.

The one-term politician also says it was never his intention to make his legislature job a career.

Blackett was culture minister under former premier Ed Stelmach but was relegated to the backbenches last fall when Alison Redford took over. He is one of many veteran politicians, including Iris Evans, Ron Liepert, Ken Kowalski, Mel Knight and Stelmach, who will not run.

From ground to plate to waste stream, the city is putting Calgary's food system under a microscope to determine where the gaps are and what the next steps will be.

As part of the City of Calgary Food System Assessment and Action Plan, experts will be seeking the answers to questions like: Where does Calgary's food come from? Who are the producers?

"We have a vision for what a sustainable food system is in Calgary, but in terms of understanding how we get there, we need to take stock of what's currently happening," said Rebecca Newlove, sustainability consultant with the city.

As it stands, Ward 9 Ald. Gian-Carlo Carra said there is no level of government responsible for looking at these aspects of food production.

"We can get food from all over the world now, but what about food close to home?" he said. "I want people to have choice."

Dana Pierce, development officer with Alberta Agriculture, said the initiative will serve as a pilot project for the province.

"Not only is it going to help the citizens of the province have access to better food, but it's going to grow the value of businesses too."

Food for thought

- Members of the Calgary food committee include city staff, chefs, Alberta Health Services employees, farmers and local businesses, among others.
- They will also assess whether there are any food deserts — locations where Calgarians don't have easy access to nutritional food.

They say the key is to reduce emissions of two powerful and fast-acting causes of global warming — methane and soot.

Carbon dioxide is the chief greenhouse gas and the one world leaders have spent the most time talking about controlling. Scientists say carbon dioxide from fossil fuels, such as coal and oil, is a bigger overall cause of global warming, but reducing methane and soot offers quicker fixes.

Woman settles suit for mistaken mastectomy

A woman whose healthy breast was removed in the mistaken belief it was cancerous has settled her lawsuit against the hospital and doctors who operated on her.

Laurie Johnston, of Leamington, Ont., was seeking $2.2 million in damages amid several investigations into how she and at least one other woman underwent surgeries they did not need.

Her lawyer, Barbara MacFarlane, said Thursday that the lawsuit had been settled, but could not disclose any of the details.

Johnston was glad the situation had been resolved, she said, and looked forward to moving on with her life.

The cases, MacFarlane added, also prompted some positive changes in the overall system.

"I'm certainly happy with the changes that seem to have occurred as a result of this case — the provincial investigation that happened, the legislative changes that occurred," MacFarlane said. "Overall, we're seeing a better public awareness and hopefully better public safety."

Johnston's lawsuit had named her surgeon, Dr. Barbara Heartwell, and pathologist, Dr. Olive Williams, as well as Hotel-Dieu Grace Hospital in Windsor, Ont., where the surgery took place, and the Leamington District Memorial Hospital.

The Harper government is being accused of taking away same-sex rights by "stealth" in light of a surprise government stand that thousands of the non-resident gay and lesbian couples who came to Canada to exchange vows aren't legally married after all.

"Nothing you can print," Savage told Metro in an interview from Seattle.

The couple was reacting to news reports according to which the Conservative government argued non-resident same-sex couples who married in Canada are not legally wed if same-sex marriages are unlawful in their home jurisdictions.

"We're not crawled up in the fetal position on the floor, we're getting up and we're going to fight," he said. "But we're pissed."

Savage said that the controversy has left marriages like his in "legal limbo."

"In Washington state, my husband and I are domestic partners because we're married in Canada," said Savage, who married Miller in Vancouver in 2005. "So if we're not married in Canada, we're not domestic partners here."

Savage said the news was "personally distressing" and "a big step backwards for Canada."

He and his husband will continue to fight to ensure the issue is debated until equality is granted to all same-sex couples.

Man found guilty of public nudity

Ontarian charged after going through drive-thrus naked Claimed nudity was legal form of expression

An Ontario court upheld Canada's public-nudity law Thursday, saying it doesn't infringe on freedom of expression or the right to practise naturism.

While nudism could be considered a protected form of expression under certain circumstances, "requiring people to wear some modicum of clothing when in public is a reasonable limit," Justice Jon-Jo A. Douglas told the court in delivering his judgment.

The court ruling comes after a constitutional challenge by a man charged in incidents involving public nudity in the Bracebridge area.

Brian Coldin was found guilty of partial nudity that offended public order for incidents at a park and two fast-food drive-thrus.

▶ Brian Coldin appears at court in Bracebridge, Ont., on Thursday.

He was found not guilty in another incident that started on his own property, a clothing-optional resort he operates in the Bracebridge area north of Toronto.

At Coldin's trial, A&W and Tim Hortons workers testified he was nude when he came to the drive-thru windows and one worker said he pretended to reach for a wallet as if wearing pants.

Outside court Thursday, Coldin said he said he wasn't nude during that incident, but was wearing a towel.

In his ruling, Douglas found Coldin's actions expressed "not much more than his desire to be publicly nude." THE CANADIAN PRESS

The RCMP spied on Bob Rae during his student activist days and likely amassed a personal dossier on the future Liberal leader, newly declassified documents reveal.

Mountie security agents, wary of late-1960s campus turmoil, kept a close eye on the University of Toronto student council, apparently relying on a secret informant to glean information about Rae and other council members.

The RCMP Security Service conducted widespread surveillance of myriad groups during the Cold War to identify left-wing subversives.

U.S. slams marines over shocking video

Officials investigating footage of men urinating on bodies of dead Afghans

A video depicting four U.S. marines supposedly urinating on the corpses of Afghans has been condemned as "utterly deplorable" and "disrespectful."

It is "absolutely inconsistent with American values, with the standards of behaviour ... that the vast majority of marines hold themselves to," U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said Thursday.

Clinton expressed "total dismay" over the video, which shows men dressed in combat gear standing over three bodies.

It is unclear how the three died or whether they were Taliban or civilians.

A caption beneath the video, which was posted on YouTube, identifies the men as part of a scout sniper team assigned to 3rd Battalion, 2nd Marines, out of Camp Lejeune, N.C.

One man in the video says, "Golden like a shower." Another begins to say, "The whole thing," before it ends. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The earthquake took place on January 2010, and according to government officials, killed 316,000 people and displaced 1.5 million.

More than 500,000 are still in temporary settlement camps.

National memorial services were planned at a UN base and the site north of the capital where thousands of victims are buried.

Sneaker factory workers to get $1M from Nike

Nike will pay workers in Indonesia $1 million for unpaid overtime.

A trade union representing 4,500 employees from a plant that sews sneakers accused the sportswear giant of failing to pay nearly 600,000 hours in the last two years.

After lengthy negotiations, the Seattle-based company agreed to a settlement.

Bambang Wirahyoso, chairman of the national trade union, says the $1 million will be paid in full by early February.

He hopes the case will set a precedent in a country where factory workers often work seven day weeks without overtime or proper benefits. Officials at Nike — which came under heavy criticism a decade ago for its use of foreign sweatshops and child labour — could not immediately be reached for comment. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Big layoffs involving security screeners are coming at Toronto's Pearson International Airport, but whether that will mean travel delays and compromises in security is a matter of dispute between their union and those employing them.

Housing prices to rise — slowly: Royal LePage

National average price for resale homes to rise 2.8%

The price of homes in Canada will continue rising this year, but the hottest markets in Toronto and Vancouver will grow much more slowly, predicts Canada's largest real estate broker.

Low mortgage rates will continue underpinning housing demand despite the weakening economy, said Royal LePage Real Estate Services in its annual housing outlook Thursday. "Interest rates are the primary driver behind activity levels in the marketplace," said Phil Soper, LePage president and CEO.

Experts believe interest rates will remain stable as the economy expands sluggishly, but eventually rates should rise with stronger growth. Royal LePage predicted the national average price for resale homes will rise 2.8 per cent by the end of the year.

The forecast follows a gain of 4.2 per cent in the national average price for a standard two-storey home to $375,427 in the fourth quarter of 2011.

In Vancouver, a standard two-storey home had an average price of $1.1 million in the fourth quarter, up 10.9 per cent from a year earlier, while Toronto saw a home in the same category gain 4.2 per cent to $629,000. But for 2012, Royal LePage expects prices in Vancouver to gain about 2.3 per cent and Toronto 2.6 per cent. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Answer work emails at home, and still get paid

Brazilian workers who find themselves answering work emails on their smartphones after the end of their shifts can qualify for overtime under a new law.

The new legislation was approved by President Dilma Rousseff last month.

It says that company emails to workers are equivalent to orders given directly to the employee.

Labour attorneys told the Folha de Sao Paulo newspaper this makes it possible for workers answering emails after hours to ask for overtime pay. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Men protest following the removal of a fuel subsidy by the government in Lagos, Nigeria, Thursday. A union representing 20,000 oil and gas workers in Nigeria threatened Thursday it would shut down all production starting Sunday to take part in the crippling nationwide strike over spiralling fuel prices.

Nigerian labour union threatens oil, gas cut

- Strikers demand restoration of fuel subsidies
- Natural-gas shutdown would turn off power grid

A major union promised Thursday to stop the beating heart of Nigeria's economy — crude oil production — as part of a nationwide strike and protests gripping Africa's most populous nation.

The union's ability to enforce the shutdown Sunday across the swamps of Nigeria's southern delta to massive offshore oil fields remains in question, though the threat of a strike could sway global oil prices.

Nigeria, home to more than 160 million people, has been paralyzed by a national strike that began Monday after the government abandoned subsidies that kept gasoline prices low. Overnight, prices at the pump more than doubled, to at least 94 cents per litre from 45 cents per litre. The costs of food and transportation also doubled.

Popular anger over losing one of the few benefits average Nigerians see from being an oil-rich nation, as well as disgust over government corruption, has led to demonstrations nationwide and related violence that has killed at least 12 people.

The Petroleum and Natural Gas Senior Staff Association of Nigeria said it would "be forced to go ahead and apply the bitter option of ordering the systematic shutting down of oil and gas production" if the government refuses to re-instate the gas subsidies. Union president Babatunde Ogun said, it could take "six months or one year" to restart fields. "We ... believe that if everything comes to a standstill, the government will budge," he said.

Markets dive on U.S. woes

Reports show unemployment claims spiked and retails sales barely budged in December

Concerns that the U.S. economy's recovery has stumbled drove global markets down Thursday, dashing an earlier rally on the back of strong bond auctions in Italy and Spain that dramatically lowered their borrowing costs.

Despite concerns that the eurozone might be slipping back into recession and analyst warnings that Europe is in for a bleak corporate earnings season, the European Central Bank declined to provide a jolt by lowering its key interest rate. Coupled with a rise in weekly unemployment claims in the U.S., that erased gains made earlier, on hopes of a reprieve from Europe's relentless debt crisis.

ECB President Mario Draghi said that the bank kept the rate at 1 per cent because recent data has shown "tentative signs of stabilization of activity at low levels." He also acknowledged, however, that the economy faced "substantial downside risks."

Investors are hoping a pickup in U.S. growth will help other struggling regions.

Exports to grow: Agency

Canadian exports will continue to grow this year in the face of a global slowdown, and it's the U.S. consumer that's likely to come to the rescue, the federal government's export agency said Thursday.

Export Development Canada, a self-funded Crown corporation that assists Canadian companies doing business abroad, forecasts foreign sales will rise by six per cent this year.

The EDC also significantly lowered its estimate for global economic growth but chief economist Peter Hall maintains that the United States will more than make up for whatever is lost in the rest of the world, particularly in Europe. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chevron strikes deal with Statoil and Repsol

Chevron Canada Ltd., a big player in Canada's offshore oil industry, has struck a deal with Norwegian and Spanish oil companies to carry out exploration off the coast of Atlantic Canada and in the Far North.

The agreement with Statoil and Repsol will boost exploration in the Orphan and Flemish Pass basins off the coast of Newfoundland and Labrador, the Canadian division of the U.S. company said Thursday.

Meanwhile, Chevron and Statoil — a big offshore player in the North Sea — have finalized a separate deal to explore for energy in the Canadian part of the Beaufort Sea. Drilling in the Beaufort Sea will have its fair share of challenges for the companies, said University of Calgary business professor Bob Schulz.

Shaw hikes dividends as profits rise

Shaw Communications Inc. raised its monthly dividend by five per cent Thursday and reported a big profit increase, but the results fell shy of analyst expectations and the stock fell slightly.

The Calgary-based cable TV and broadcasting giant said its first-quarter profits were $202 million, or 43 cents per share. Its dividend was raised by five cents on an annual basis to 97 cents per share.

Analysts polled by Thomson Reuters had on average expected earnings of 47 cents per share.

On the Toronto Stock Exchange, Shaw shares fell 28 cents at $20.20 on higher-than-normal volume of nearly 1.3 million shares at late midafternoon.

Shaw's management team was called out Thursday at the company's annual meeting by an investor who described himself as disappointed by the company's stock performance.

"I'm just wondering why I should continue to be an investor," Graham Berkhold told CEO Brad Shaw.

The shareholder of 12 years and customer of 20 said Shaw's share price has fallen seven per cent over the past five years, while those of its competitors have risen.

FOUR MARINES THAT MISSED THE POTTY-TRAINING SEMINAR

THE METRO LIST

PAUL SULLIVAN
METRO

It's going to be a jam-packed year, as we have to get it all in before the world ends on Dec. 21.

So let's get started with this week's Metro List, the authoritative compendium of what's goin' on:

1 PR nightmare: Four U.S. marines are caught urinating on dead Taliban with extreme prejudice. Once again, the smartphone proves its worth as a weapon of mass embarrassment.

2 Awwww: Vancouver Aquarium's sea otter Milo, the world's cutest animal, succumbs to cancer at 12. A YouTube video of Milo and Nyac — also a sea otter — holding paws and floating on their backs, has racked up 17 million views. Nyac was the older woman; she died last year at 20. Who says otters are slippery? Milo was staunch.

3 Dining alfresco: Breast-feeding pix nixed on Facebook as sexually explicit, which leads us to wonder just how kinky they are at the world's foremost social network. Meanwhile, that "naturist" guy who kept going through the drive-thru at Timmy Ho's starkers had his sentence upheld. So what's the big deal? They're both cases of little boys having dinner.

4 World's most dangerous job: Iranian nuclear scientist No. 4 gets blown up this week. The Israelis: Who, Us? If this keeps up, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad will have to make his own damn atomic bombs.

5 Katy Perry: 5; Russell Brand: 0: She's hot enough to melt your popsicle, winning five People's Choice Awards. Ex-hubby Russell Brand? He loses the California Gurl. And the consolation prize of being referred to as the star of Arthur is no consolation at all.

6 Good news, bad news: In the same week, Toronto Maple Leafs defenceman Dion Phaneuf gets voted to the all-star squad and is rated the NHL's most overrated player. Somebody's wrong.

7 HBD: Kate Middleton, er, the Duchess of Somewhere, turns 30. You think that's something? Betty White turns 90 this week, and she's still funny. Kate Middleton has never — to our knowledge — been funny. Although she does smile a lot.

8 Show us the file: The RCMP spied on Bob Rae when he was on the University of Toronto student council. Now that he's Liberal leader, they don't care … as he's a threat to no one.

9 Bieber watch: He's going back into the studio to work on his next album. Will his voice crack before he's finished?

Dutch storms create wave of orphaned seal pups

A volunteer feeds a seal a herring at the Pieterburen seal creche, north of the town of Groningen, in northern Netherlands on Thursday.

Storms that have lashed the Dutch coast this year have created a wave of orphaned baby seals, some so young their umbilical cords are still attached, wrenched from their mothers and washed up on beaches and dikes. An existing Pieterburen seal rehabilitation and research center (SRRC) near the northern city of Groningen has been so inundated with pups and older seals in recent weeks it has erected a temporary tent to house them while they are nurtured back to health before being returned to the wild.

'Screamers'

- American volunteer Torrey Utne said Thursday that in the last 10 days, more than 100 seals have been brought to the centre for treatment and it now houses some 350 of the marine mammals.
- Many of them are young pups known as "screamers" for their high-pitched whining.

"Some of the seals are really friendly.... They will come right up to you and sniff you because they know you are the one bringing fish."

Synopsis

In the New Orleans-set crime thriller Contraband, Mark Wahlberg plays Chris Farraday, a reformed criminal forced to do the proverbial one last job when his brother-in-law Andy (Caleb Landry Jones) runs afoul of a local gangster (Giovanni Ribisi). To square the deal and pay-off Andy's debt, Chris agrees to go back into his old line of work — smuggling. In this case he must illegally transport millions of dollars in counterfeit bills. But can he navigate around the police, ruthless drug lords and double crosses to keep Andy and his family safe?

Old plot, new twist

The 'one last heist' genre gets the grit of Mark Wahlberg in Contraband

Richard: Mark, Maybe January isn't a dumping ground for awful movies anymore. Used to be that only the dregs came out after Christmas, but Contraband is actually a pretty good thriller. It's not brilliant, but succeeds mainly because Wahlberg can play the family man, as he does in the first part of the movie, and then switch gears to have believable tough-guy swagger.

Mark: Well, the plot — One! Last! Heist! is as old as Dick Clark's toupee. But the movie is all in the details — the gritty port milieu, the dirty hold of the cargo boat, the cheap 'n'sleazy Panamanian dives; this flick is the antidote to Miami Vice — there's zero glamour in this smuggling game. As far as Wahlberg goes, I found him totally believable and it's the best thing he's done in a while. But what's up with Ben Foster? Does he have to be a creep in every movie he's in?

RC: Foster is a fine but typecast actor. He really needs to break away from the deadbeat kind of characters he's been playing lately. More work like his heartrending performance in The Messenger please, and less like paint-by-number creepy guys he plays in movies like this and The Mechanic.

MB: And I was all excited to see Kate Beckinsale out of Vampirella drag — and then they gave her nothing to do; the worst wifey part in recent memory. The other supporting roles weren't all that great, either, although Giovanni Ribisi does make a swell bad guy, and I'll always have a soft spot for JK Simmons after his role in Oz. I like seeing him in anything.

RC: With the way Ribisi chews the scenery here and his work in The Rum Diary he's proving himself to be the hungriest actor in Hollywood next to Nic Cage. He was fun. Beckinsale, not so much. Why cast her and then simply make her the damsel in distress? You'd think after kicking werewolf butt in four Underworld movies she'd be able to defend herself by now. Unfortunately the supporting characters are less interesting than the movie as a whole.

MB: It's not really an 'actor's movie,' is it? But the mechanics of the heist work, as well as the action sequences, and that's why it's worth watching. Oh, and a fabulous art joke, which seems out of whack with the rest of the film, but is a hoot nevertheless.

Chris Alexander takes his sons to Beauty and the Beast 3D The boys bond over chick-flick bashing

CHRIS ALEXANDER
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

HANDOUT

▶ The 1992 Oscar-nominated Beauty and the Beast gets the 3D treatment this weekend.

Today, the house the mouse built digs up another masterwork, in 3D: 1992's sumptuous, Oscar-nominated Beauty and the Beast. For this review, I opted to not only bring my four-and-a-half year old son Jack to critique, but also another member of my film-reared brood, three-year-old Elliot, a young man who adores motion pictures ... but abhors wearing 3D glasses.

Now that's as good a place to start as any.

Beauty is just that, a ravishing classic fairy tale, with every single hand drawn frame a work of warm art. So why then, put it in 3D? The answer is, of course, to compete in today's screen leaping obsessed marketplace. Beauty is a dark affair, however, and much of the gimmick is ineffective. And in Elliot's case, annoying, as the lad kept removing his specs, refusing my many attempts to put them back on. No matter. He still was gripped by the picture. Both boys were. It's tight, colourful, lively, operatic and brisk. And although the new 3D sheen lacks the punch it promises, it's still exciting to see Beauty and the Beast return to screens.

It also for me, marks a milestone in Jack's cinematic pallet in the form of his newly minted disdain for chick flicks.

"I loved that movie," he remarked as the credits rolled. "But I hate girls in dresses that kiss."

Bracing for Ricky's return

Golden Globe nominees say they're ready, even eager, for the comic wrath of host Ricky Gervais

When Golden Globes host Ricky Gervais took sharp swipes at Mel Gibson, Bruce Willis, Robert Downey, Jr. and the Hollywood Foreign Press Association at last year's ceremony, some criticized the comedian for going too far.

Downey described the vibe as "hugely mean-spirited, with mildly sinister undertones."

With Gervais back for his third turn as Globes host on Sunday, nominees are already preparing themselves for the British funnyman's pointed jabs.

"I'll probably get the piss taken out of me, but it's fine with me," said Elton John, nominated for his song from Gnomeo & Juliet. "I'm British. I can take it."

Johnny Galecki, who is up for his first Golden Globe for his work on TV's The Big Bang Theory, said that when he got word he was nominated, "one of my first five thoughts was, 'Oh Christ, Gervais is going to make fun of me.'"

But the actor isn't really worried.

"I'll be flattered by it," said the 5-foot 5-inch Galecki. "I'm looking forward to it. I hope he doesn't just zero in on the height. That's just easy pickings."

Damian Lewis, nominated for his work on the TV series Homeland, said he might also be an easy target for Gervais.

"If he's got a thing about redheads, I'm a sitting duck," Lewis said.

Glee and American Horror Story executive producer Ryan Murphy is excited about Gervais' return and the spice he brings to the three-hour telecast.

"It's always good with the shows to have an unpredictable element to them, and he certainly is that," Murphy said. "He's very funny and very smart and I think he will make nominees even more nervous than they already are, which is kind of funny."

Seth Rogen, who produced and starred in best picture nominee 50/50, is also looking forward to Gervais' return. He even went online to check out what the comedian said last year.

"It was the first time in a long time I'd gone on YouTube and watched something an awards show said," Rogen said.

Supporting actor nominee Christopher Plummer said he appreciates Gervais' irreverence.

"I think finally everybody's come to that same conclusion: That that's him, he doesn't mean it, but he's very funny," Plummer said.

Jean Dujardin, nominated for his starring role in the silent film The Artist (which is also up for best picture and is the night's leading nominee with six bids), said it would be an honour if Gervais even mentioned him.

But there's a caveat, the actor said: "If he mocks me, he has to do it silently, without any words."

The 69th annual Golden Globe Awards will be presented Sunday at the Beverly Hilton Hotel and broadcast live on NBC.

Ben's big 3

Ben Mulroney's three favourite Golden Globes red carpet moments.

1 "At a certain point during the red carpets, you're told to stop doing interviews so they can get everyone inside for the show. Last year, as we were wrapping up, Vancouver-raised Cory Monteith spotted our ETALK logo and ran over to chat with us anyway. A publicist spotted us, and kept trying to shut the interview down until Cory asked her to please calm down and let him talk. He broke the rules because he didn't want to miss the opportunity to say hi to Canada."

2 "I'd always wanted to talk to Emma Stone, and last year I got my chance. She came on the carpet with her platinum blonde hair because for her Spider-Man role, and was absolutely stunning. It was refreshing to talk to someone whose star was rising, but was still so down to earth. She was fun, confident, well-spoken and didn't take herself too seriously. Through her movies, you feel like you get a sense of who she is, and you do – there's no pretence with her. You definitely won't see Emma pulling a Lindsay Lohan."

3 "ETALK is lucky to have a platform position at the Golden Globes, so we're able to talk to a whole cast if the opportunity arises, and last year it did. The entire cast of The Walking Dead came onto our platform and I literally dropped to my knees and bowed to their greatness. The show is built for TV and movie fans, with an amazing cast. They're all great stars who may not be at the Oscars, but their level of accomplishment is on par with anyone nominated for an Academy Award. I was honoured to have the chance to talk to them." Movie reviews See it twice | See it now | Worth watching | Yawn | Don't bother

The Iron Lady
Genre: Drama
Director: Phyllida Lloyd
Stars: Meryl Streep, Jim Broadbent, Richard E. Grant

The film begins in the present with Margaret Thatcher, the longest serving British Prime Minister of the 20th Century, diminished by age. She daydreams conversations with her late husband and reflects on the past, which leads us into the "greatest hits" biographical format that makes up most of the movie.

It's all rather standard, elevated by a performance that once again displays what a great technician Meryl Streep is. She embodies Thatcher, from the flamboyant hair to the ever-present pearls although the real heavy lifting is done in the "lion in winter" scenes. It's there the movie goes beyond the showy impersonation and becomes an emotional, well rounded portrait.

RICHARD CROUSE

A Dangerous Method
Genre: Drama
Director: David Cronenberg
Stars: Michael Fassbender, Keira Knightley, Viggo Mortensen

Director David Cronenberg has rarely been this simply elegant. The story of two pioneering figures of psychoanalysis, Carl Jung (Michael Fassbender) and Sigmund Freud (Viggo Mortensen), who have a falling out over an intelligent but troubled patient, Sabina Spielrein (Keira Knightley), is sophisticated and stylish. Shot compositions and camerawork are kept simple so as not to distract from the star of the show — the dialogue. As you might imagine for a drama about therapists, there is a great deal of talk. A Dangerous Method won't be for everyone. The combo of love story and birth of modern analysis is an odd mix, but in its introspection is a fascinating glimpse into the character's lives and minds.

RICHARD CROUSE

Joyful Noise
Genre: Comedy/Musical
Director: Todd Graff
Stars: Queen Latifah, Dolly Parton, Keke Palmer

You'd have to be pretty hard hearted not to get a charge out of the outsized enthusiasm of Joyful Noise.

OK, the script is overloaded; it's unashamedly cornpone and "squeaky clean" is an understatement. It concerns a local church choir in a vaguely unsettlingly small Georgia town where everyone knows your business.

And sadly, Dolly Parton may have passed the surgical tipping point.

However, the third act gospel competition is a glorious bolt of musical lightning that all but obliterates these niggling problems.

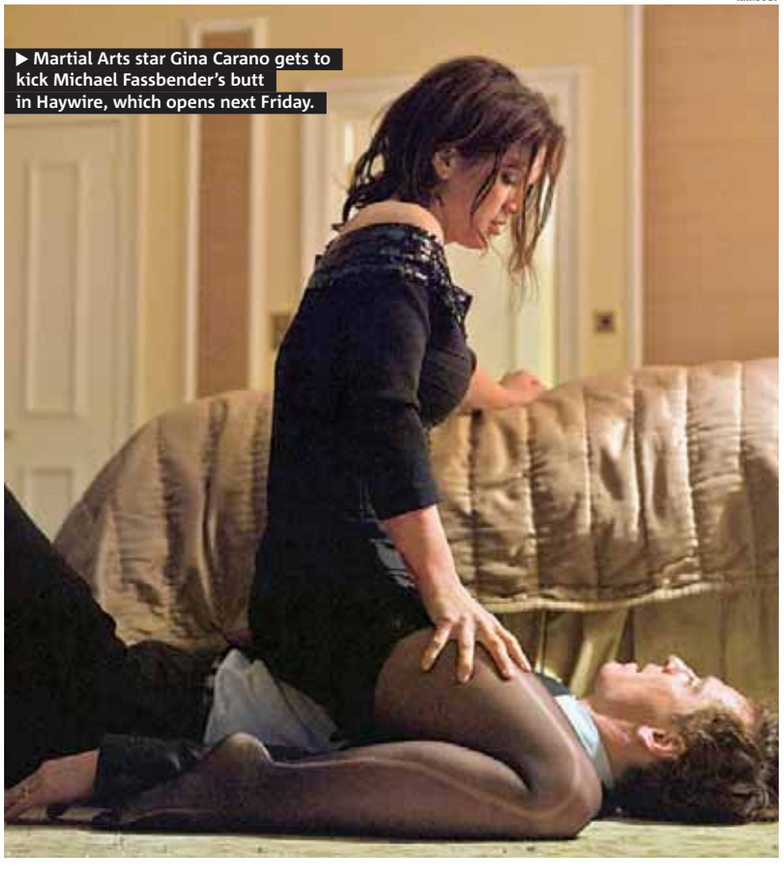
Channing Tatum meets his match in martial arts expert Gina Carano They square off in Haywire

SASHA PERL-RAVER
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

HANDOUT



▶ Martial Arts star Gina Carano gets to kick Michael Fassbender's butt in Haywire, which opens next Friday.

Channing Tatum knows how to pick a fight. Last year, he quite vocally went on the record admitting he wasn't interested in watching or starring opposite a female action hero until Hollywood unearthed a woman who was truly intimidating.

"I've always wanted someone that I would be afraid to fight. And they found one," he grins, sitting in a suite at the Four Seasons in Beverly Hills where he's promoting his latest film, Haywire, a Bourne-esque action thriller about a covert operative caught in a deadly double cross that's headlined by female mixed martial arts star Gina Carano. "Isn't she just the most amazing little thing ever?" Tatum gushes. "I mean, she's diesel, but she's just got the best heart and she's so good in this movie."

Sculpting her acting chops

▶ Gina Carano recalls her first day of work, which had her going toe-to-toe with one of 2011's breakout stars, Michael Fassbender. "At that point, I had only read lines with an acting coach for maybe three days," she cringes. "I showed up and Michael said, 'You want to run lines?' And I said, 'Please.' It was the first time I'd run lines with an actor. He put some whiskey down in front of me and said, 'OK, let's do this.'"

Carano, best known for her fight appearances and role as Crush on American Gladiators, was approached by Haywire director Steven Soderbergh to do an action movie, though he did caution her it would be "interesting" to see who signed opposite on for roles that demanded grown men get their butts kicked by a girl … who also happens to be a trained Muy Thai fighter.

"She's a real fighter, she can beat up most dudes," Tatum chuckles.

Her other co-stars are equally enthusiastic: "Oh, I got my butt kicked sideways by her and I loved every minute of it," Ewan McGregor offers. "It never crossed my mind for a minute not to do the movie for some macho reason."

Carano, who describes herself as "a tomboy who also loved Pride and Prejudice," says she feels incredibly lucky to have been given the chance to do any movie, let alone the lead in a Soderbergh project.

"I don't consider myself what people are necessarily looking for," she says, surprisingly sheepish for someone who knows her way around a submission choke-out.

"So I knew if I was going to get this opportunity, it was going to have to come to me. And it did."

Mourning Maury

Cast of Less Than Kind come together after sudden death of actor Maury Chaykin ◗ Filming now therapeutic

STEVE GOW
@METRONEWS.CA

HANDOUT

▶ Less Than Kind returns for a third season Sunday on HBO Canada.

Overcoming the loss of your lead actor can be detrimental to a television series.

For Less than Kind — who suddenly lost the prolific, irreplaceable Maury Chaykin in July — demise surely seemed imminent.

"We thought about (calling it quits) but I think we just absorbed the shock of it," said head writer/producer Mark McKinney, perhaps better known as one-fifth of the legendary Kids in the Hall comedy troupe.

"We realized we had created this great show about a completely authentic family and this was a really sad but completely authentic experience that people could relate to so (continuing) seemed like an obvious thing."

Despite the difficult decision to persevere with a third season (which premieres this Sunday on HBO Canada), the experience of finding a way around a set that didn't include Chaykin's magnificent personality was an adjustment.

In an act of art imitating life in the new season, the fictional Blecher family will find catharsis grieving for their patriarch just as the real-life close-knit cast and crew had to.

"Sam Blecher dies early in the series and like it happens in families, this rearranges and changes relationships," explained McKinney.

"Then people work their way back; so we send the characters quite far out of their normal orbit and then sort of pull them back but I hope in a realistic way. And it's funny too considering what we were dealing with."

But turning out new episodes wasn't just steely resolve for the show. For those close to Chaykin, filming became an exercise in therapy — that especially rang true for McKinney.

"Maury died five days before my mom did so it was really a hell of a summer. But my own family, we grew a factor closer by going through that together and so did this cast so in that sense it was all good in a way."

'So grateful'

Less Than Kind won three Gemini Awards while the cast still mourned Chaykin's death.

▶ "Winning the Geminis was amazing but we were all together a week before that for our first read-through (of Season 3) and that is the thing that is special to me," said McKinney. "We were so grateful to be back together and to be able to process all this."

'Inside Napoleon's head'

Jon Heder says one of the best things about his new Napoleon Dynamite cartoon is that fans will no longer be asking him "that" question.

HANDOUT

Napoleon Dynamite

"It's the number one question you always get — is there going to be any more Napoleon?" says the actor, who is still best known as the awkward title character in the 2004 cult hit.

"So whether it's a sequel or television show or whatever, I'm happy to say the adventures of Napoleon will continue."

Also back for the animated series — which will join The Simpsons and Family Guy on Fox's Sunday night lineup — is the film's director/writer Jared Hess and all the original cast members. Add to that executive producer Mike Scully (The Simpsons), and the future looks bright for the curly-haired nerd.

"We always felt if we ever continued the adventures of Napoleon, that we would do it in animated form," says Hess.

"It was a way we could get inside Napoleon's head…to kind of do things you can't do in live action. One of the great things about animation is that it costs just as much to draw a space ship as a car."

The cartoon marks the first time the cast has been back together since the film's release.

"It's been a lot of fun," says Hess. "Because most of us hadn't seen each other since it played at Sundance when we first screened it. It was kind of a fun, little reunion to get everyone back together for the table read…"

Less enjoyable for Heder has been the increased acting workload.

"It was a very relaxing film to do because…you can hide behind your eyelids and rest your voice," he laughs.

"But for the lead character in an ongoing animated series, I've had to show way more emotional range than I've ever had in anything else."

Katey Sagal's music career gets a boost from hit show's soundtrack

Somebody get Katey Sagal a record deal — no really.

Although she's happy with her day job on the successful F/X series Sons of Anarchy, in her heart, she's a singer — and she gets a chance to show it as part of a new collection of songs from the show's first four seasons.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Katey Sagal

"I love being an actor, but there's something about playing music that's a gift," the 57-year-old Sagal admits.

In the past, Sagal recorded on Elektra and Casablanca Records. But times have changed in the music business for her, and she paid to record her last album. Sagal yearns to record again in a more traditional manner.

"I'm still old school. I have to go in the studio with a producer."

Music From Sons of Anarchy: Season 1-4 features three songs by Sagal, and represents a return to her main love. Though Sagal gained her fame as an actress, her first big break in show business was in music. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MUSIC PREDICTIONS FOR 2012

SOUND CHECK

ALAN CROSS
SCENE
@METRONEWS.CA

Here are some predictions for music in 2012.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Madonna is hoping her new album will go to number one on the charts.

Indie music's impact will be greater than ever. Major labels — we'll soon be down to just three — will continue to chase mass audiences with mass appeal artists. Their focus will be more on creating Top 40 superstars. It'll be up to the indies to deliver the truly interesting stuff. And they will.

In addition to mass appeal acts, the major labels will really push heritage performers. This year's big reunions so far are the Cranberries (new album on Feb. 14), the Stone Roses (festivals this summer) and Black Sabbath (new album this fall). Also expect more deluxe reissues (Tragically Hip, I'm looking at you) as they try to persuade us to buy new copies of old albums — at a premium, of course.

Madonna and the Rolling Stones will battle it out for the tour of the year. Madonna will release her new album in March. And, although they're playing coy, there's no way the Rolling Stones won't go on a 50th anniversary tour this year.

The gap between what's on the radio and what the kids are listening to online will continue to widen. Ask anyone under 24 about Lana Del Ray and they'll know instantly who you're talking about. Even though she's barely made any kind of dent in commercial radio, her indie appeal is enough for her to be the musical guest on Saturday Night Live.

This is the year streaming music services will really take off. Rdio and Slacker are already in Canada. Spotify is coming.

CDs will still be around in twelve months. Ignore all those stupid predictions that the labels will boot the compact disc this year.

There will be another glut of Christmas albums in 11 months. For the past couple of years, Christmas albums have saved the music industry's fourth quarter. The trend will repeat in 2012.

Love don't cost a thing, just $40,000 a month

▶ Even if you were broke, her love won't cost a thing. In fact, she'll even pay you to love her.

THE WORD

DOROTHY ROBINSON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

It pays to be Jennifer Lopez's boy toy. Star magazine reports that Lopez is paying her former back-up dancer Casper Smart $10,000 a week so he can pretend like he has the funds to date her high-profile self (it's like crazy Britney Spears all over again).

A source tells the mag, "She hated having to whip out her credit card every time they go to dinner. Jen figured it's easier to give Casper a weekly stipend, and she thought $10,000 was a nice round number. Jen doesn't want to go over the top, showering Casper with too much, but she also wants him to up his game. Jen is hoping Casper won't think twice about buying presents for her kids or whisking her off for a surprise weekend getaway."

Ha. No. $40,000 a month as payment to be your boyfriend isn't "over the top" at all! That's totally normal. From the block, indeed. No wonder she's shilling so hard for Fiat — she has a boyfriend to support.

▶ Halle Berry

Berry still bursting

Halle Berry is reportedly eager to expand her family with fiancé Olivier Martinez, according to Star magazine.

"Halle is very serious about this marriage," a source says. "She's ready."

Another source adds, "Olivier has become her rock. Halle would love to have more kids, but she knows it might be difficult because of her age and the fact that she's diabetic."

Kelly back with Derek Jeter

THEY'LL BE OFF AGAIN IN A FEW WEEKS Minka Kelly is back together with her on-again, off-again boyfriend, New York Yankees star Derek Jeter, but when they were last off she didn't exactly have a shortage of other options. Sources tells Us Weekly that Kelly shot down a come-on from Jake Gyllenhaal last fall while she was temporarily single. But that's not to say that Gyllenhaal isn't up to her standards. Kelly was just "trying to patch things up" with Jeter quietly at the time.

Cougar Town confuses Cox's child

I SAW MOMMY KISSING ... Courteney Cox says her on-screen romance with Cougar Town co-star Josh Hopkins has led to some confusing moments at home with her 7-year-old daughter, Coco, since Hopkins is also a close family friend.

"She shouldn't watch Cougar Town, but she does," Cox tells Us Weekly about her daughter. "She's always like, 'Mommy! Did you really kiss Josh?' And I'm like, 'I'm just faking it!'" Cox and Hopkins have been rumored to be dating in real life as well but have both denied reports of a relationship.

Wine sipping on a budget

A New Year brings many things. None of which are more thrilling than those post-holiday bills dropped off by your friendly postman.

While coming to grips with how much you spent making your Christmas merry may be enough to drive you to drink, finding a bottle of something decent you can pay for with the change found between your couch cushions may seem unlikely.

Though larger format sizes offer good value, many are blended, non-vintage wines with European sounding names and lackluster taste. That makes a drinkable, inexpensive vintage wine in a 1,500 millilitre bottle one of the Holy Grails of the booze business.

Low labour costs and a predictable climate make those from Chile consistent and quaffable. The 2010 Frontera Cabernet Sauvignon Merlot (1,500 ml, $14.95 - $20.49) — made by mega producer Concha y Toro — is a light mix of bright acidity, super soft tannins and fresh berry flavours.

Try this red with tomato-based pasta sauces and grilled meats. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

DINNER EXPRESS

EMILY RICHARDS
FOOD@METRONEWS.CA

Save the champagne for the Oscars and serve up a little port for a fun evening get-together to celebrate the Golden Globe winners.

The pairing of salty delicate crackers and sweet aged port will be a sophisticated match to enjoy while basking in the winners' circle.

Preparation:

1. In a food processor or bowl, combine cheese and butter. Add flour, walnuts, pepper and salt. Blend until dough starts to come together. Bring mixture together with your hands as necessary and place onto a large piece of plastic wrap.
2. Shape dough into about a 6 inch (15 cm) long log and refrigerate for at least 1 hour or until firm.
3. Cut into 1/4 inch (5 mm) thick slices and place on parchment paper lined baking sheet. Bake in 350 F (180 C) oven for about 15 minutes or until golden. Let cool completely on pan. Remove with small spatula.

Flames beat unlucky Ducks

Game's only offence comes in overtime on eventful off-ice night at Scotiabank Saddledome

▶ Blair Jones, centre, celebrates his first goal as a Flame with teammates, from left, Lee Stempniak, Mark Giordano and Anton Babchuk in Calgary on Thursday night.

Blair Jones scored his first Calgary goal in overtime and Miikka Kiprusoff made 23 saves as the Flames beat the Anaheim Ducks 1-0 Thursday night.

Kiprusoff improved to 20-14-2 and earned his third shutout of the season and 43rd of his career, tying him for 27th on the all-time list with Lorne (Gump) Worsley.

With neither team able to score in the third period, the game went to extra time where Jones hopped on his own rebound and flipped the puck over Jonas Hiller at 1:51.

Jones was playing in his third game with the Flames since being acquired from the Tampa Bay Lightning on Jan. 6.

Calgary confirmed in a first-period press conference that it had re-acquired Mike Cammalleri, who led the Flames with 39 goals in 2008-09.

The Flames could have used his offence on Thursday. They had a paltry six shots through the game's first 40 minutes. However, Anaheim couldn't solve Kiprusoff either despite holding an edge in shots.

The Flames (21-19-5) have won three in a row and are sizzling on home ice where they've won eight straight and are 10-0-1 in their last 11.

Anaheim (13-22-7) had its three-game winning streak snapped.

Flames defenceman Mark Giordano assisted on the winner in his first game back after missing 21 with a hamstring injury. The assistant captain had not played since Nov. 29.

7th

Jarome Iginla was named an all-star for the seventh time on Thursday. Iginla was the only Flames player invited to the Jan. 29 game in Ottawa.

Anaheim has dominated Calgary for the past dozen years, going 20-1-4 and picking up points in 24 of the 25 games between the clubs dating back to March 1999.

A video review was required on two Anaheim scoring chances. The puck crossed the goal-line at 18:02 of the first period, but on-ice officials said the shot by George Parros was intentionally kicked in by Rod Pelley as he drove to the net. A review confirmed the ruling.

Halfway through the third period Saku Koivu sent a pass over to former Flames winger Niklas Hagman. Kiprusoff jabbed out his pad to stop it, but momentum carried Kiprusoff into the net and there was a question of whether the puck crossed the line. A review showed the puck stayed out. # Flames bring back a familiar face

A day after questioning Canadiens' attitude, Cammalleri shipped to Calgary for Bourque, Holland, draft pick

The Montreal Canadiens shipped forward Michael Cammalleri to the Calgary Flames on Thursday, adding another chapter to the storied organization's turbulent season.

The Canadiens receive forwards Rene Bourque and Patrick Holland and a second-round pick in the 2013 draft. Bourque is currently serving a five-game suspension for elbowing Washington's Nicklas Backstrom in the head.

The trade comes one day after Cammalleri was quoted as questioning the Canadiens' attitude in the dressing room after a loss to the St. Louis Blues.

Canadiens general manager Pierre Gauthier denied the trade had anything to do with the recent controversy and said the team has been working on a deal for more than a month.

22
Cammalleri has nine goals and 13 assists for 22 points in 37 games for the Canadiens this season.

He said the young players who joined the team this year like David Desharnais and Rafael Diaz are smaller skaters, but the team needs to get bigger.

"The majority of goals are scored around the net now, on deflections, screened shots," he said. "We need to score those difficult goals. You need to go to those areas to get those second and third chances."

"We improved our team tonight. It's not to put down Mr. Cammalleri, it was to get bigger as a team."

Cammalleri is listed as five-foot-nine and 190 pounds, while Bourque's player profile says he is six-foot-two and 211 pounds.

Cammalleri returns to the Flames, where he had 39 goals and 82 points in the 2008-09 season. Calgary also acquires goaltender Karri Ramo and a fifth-round pick in the 2012 draft.

Montreal coach Randy Cunneyworth confirmed the deal after Thursday night's game against Boston. Cammalleri was pulled during the third-period of the game and apparently sent back to the team hotel.
